Local Clubs Claim They Don't Bar Jews

Five Indianapolis clubs claimed this week that they had no provisions in their admissions policies barring Jews.

The clubs were Country Club of Indianapolis, Hillcrest country club, Meridian Hills country club, Riviera club and Columbia club.

Each of the five clubs said that there were no regulations which would keep people of the Jewish faith out of the clubs.

Each club claimed that they did have Jewish members.

The survey of Indianapolis country clubs was made after Ralph Bunche and his son were barred by the West Side Tennis club in New York on the grounds that the club barred Negroes and Jews. Later the club denied that the statement by its president was true. (See inside pages.)

Fred Grumme, membership chairman of the Meridian Hills country club, said that his club had no discriminatory clauses against Jews but he was not specific when asked if there were any Jewish members. He said, "I don't know what their (club members) religion is. That is not brought up as an issue. In cases where only one of a husband and wife pair list their religion we do not go into it."

The manager of the club told

The POST and OPINION that none of the members that he knew of were Jewish.

The Riviera club, where Rabbi Maurice Davis' son was barred (P-O, Jan. 2) said that they had no anti-Jewish regulation and that everyone has an equal opportunity of presenting admissions blanks.

EUGENE PULLIAM JR., president of the Country Club of Indianapolis, said that his club had no regulations and did have Jewish members. However, he refused to say how many because "it is a personal matter with the organization. I could show you an application and there is no place for indication of religion."

Ted Warman, president of the Hillcrest country club said that not many Jewish people applied to his country club. He added that there are no prohibitive rules whatsoever and that they have two Jewish members.

A spokesman for the Columbia club said that they "have no regulations of that sort whatsoever." They could not tell how many Jewish members they have because "they don't keep track of that sort of thing." Concerning Negro members, the club said "we have no regulations about it at all. It all goes before a screening committee."

COUNCIL WOMEN GIVE AID TO S. BENNETT, W. SHAW

The Indianapolis section National Council of Jewish Women have awarded college scholarships to two Indianapolis residents.

The winners are Saragrace Bennett and William Shaw.

Shaw, graduated this year from the Indiana school for the blind, where he was enrolled for the past eight years, will attend the Purdue University extension here and study in the technology department.

The council awarded him $250 which is half tuition.

Shaw was the assistant editor of the school newspaper, a member of the school orchestra, and on the wrestling team.

He has been employed at the Jewish community center in the maintenance department for the past two summers. His wife works as secretary for the Indiana School for the Blind.

Saragrace is a recent graduate of Broad Ripple high school. She plans to attend the University of Cincinnati and participate in the work-study plan with L. S. Ayres. She will take a five-year marketing course

Saragrace was awarded $725 to cover ex-

Joey Adams Gives Good Show; Sells Over $75,000 in Bonds

Comedian Joey Adams had his audience practically rolling in the isles and also relieved them of $75,600 in pledges and cash for Israel Bonds at the bond dinner, Tuesday, July 14.

Adams went from jocular to seriousness in telling his Broadmoor audience of the value of Israel Bonds. And he sold some, too. The $75,600 was considerably more than he or the bond organization had expected and also bettered the amount raised at a similar meeting last June.

Almost 80 per cent of the audience participated in the buying with the top nine pledges reaching $46,000. The highest pledge was $20,000 and the lowest $100.

But Adams had a kiss or a handshake for every purchaser. After delivering his talk Adams walked through the audience encouraging purchases. Adams said that he liked to do this rather than just make a speech because it made him feel like he was doing something personally for the Bonds.

Leon Kuhl executive director of bonds had much praise for Adams and his work on behalf of Bonds. Kuhl thought a large amount of the evening's success was due to Adams.

Adams told his audience that "we are far from out of the woods as far as prejudice and anti-Semitism are concerned." He noted the recent bomb troubles in Atlanta and Peoria and the discrimination practiced against the son of Nobel peace prize winner Ralph Bunche. Adams said that this was linked to anti-Semitic outbursts in Romania and Jordan. He said the Jews have cause to be worried if there is prejudice or segregation in any part of the world because it can get back here to us. "We are together as one whether we like it or not," Adams noted.

Joey urged support of Israel as being the only place in the world where human beings are judged by character and talent alone, not by size of beard, the color of the skin the kind of clothes, or which church or synagogue he attends. "Other countries look to the past, but Israel with the most glorious past of them all, looks to the future."

Adams said that he had been helping Israel Bonds as many nights that he could get free from other commitments. He thought that he had sold over $50 million in bonds in the nine years of Israel Bond existence.

English stage star Alan Mowbray made the scene at the end of the meeting in time to tell five jokes. Airplane difficulties caused his tardiness.

Kuhl said that $158,000 in cash had been collected by bonds in Indianapolis last year and that they hoped to improve on that this year.

Named to the board of governors of Indianapolis Israel Bonds were Herbert J. Backer, Sol Blickman, Mrs. Manuel Cassen, Joseph Cohen, Sam Dorfman, Charles S. Efromson Jr., Mrs. Ernest Herman; Mrs. Abe Kroot, Rabbi Elias Levi, Mrs. Lewis Levy, Rabbi Moses Magnes, Albert P. Nahamias, David Nelson, Abe Ofengender, Rabbi Rafal Sloba, and Samuel Weinberger

Approximately 95 people attended.

FRUCHTER WON'T EAT AT BOND DINNER

Rabbi Nandor Fruchter, a member of Israel Bonds advisory committee, was forced to skip the dinner at the bond meeting held at the Broadmoor country club Tuesday because it was not kosher.

Fruchter, who had a seat on the dias, came to the meeting about 8 p. m. after the dinner had been served. In commenting about the food served Fruchter said "I wouldn't touch it here."

Leon Kuhl, Bonds' executive director, told The POST and OPINION that it was a personal oversight that Fruchter was not offered a kosher meal.

Fruchter had previously (P-O, Feb. 20, '59) said that he wished other Jewish organizations would follow the example of the Indianapolis Hebrew congregation who had served him a kosher meal.

Survey Shows Jewish Leaders Support Ben-Gurion Arms Sale

LOS ANGELES (P-O) — The overwhelming majority of local Jewish community leaders back the sale of arms by Israel to West Germany, a poll by one of the city's metropolitan daily papers has disclosed.

THE NEED to bury the past and not look backward in anger, plus the troubled world opinion, were the reasons given by those favoring the action of Ben-Gurion, the Los Angeles Examiner reported.

Sounding off in opposition to the arms contract were the editors of two of the city's Anglo-Jewish newspapers. They called it "morally despicable" and "an action that has raised the hackles of every thinking person."

RABBI Max Nussbaum, the West Coast's foremost Zionist spokesman (he's chairman of the ZOA national executive committee) and a frequent critic of postwar German, said:

"As one who lost most of his family in German concentration camps, I, nevertheless, agree with Prime Minister Ben-Gurion's stand on this question."

CALIFORNIA State Attorney General Stanley Mosk, a past president of the Los Angeles Jewish Community Council, commented:

"Today's prescription for survival is the solidarity and strength of Western democratic allies and any necessary military or economic aid for the purpose is justifiable."

INDUSTRIAL and local Jewish community leader for more than a decade Stanley Slotkin warned that Israel has to build up its armament industry.

"It has no choice with 40 million Arabs surrounding it."

JESS NATHAN, of the Valley Jewish News, took an opposing view:

"It is only a few short years since the Nazis turned Europe into a mass graveyard. To do business with them has much of the taste of being indebted to the butchers who murdered your parents."

And Herb Brin, Heritage editor-publisher, said, "No matter how much holy water is poured on Ben-Gurion's act, it is still morally despicable to sell weapons of death to Germany. Remember, this is the land which learned to handle death well."

Others backing Ben-Gurion were:

AARON RICHE, regional president of the Zionist Organization of America; Rabbi Judah Hahn; Mrs. Leo Hirsh, West Coast Haddassah leader; Attorney Mendel Silberberg, former LAJCC president; and Joseph J. Cummins publisher of the B'nai B'rith Messenger, the city's oldest Anglo-Jewish paper.

"It is a question of Western civilization versus Communism," wrote Cummins. "The Communist backbiters are just trying to create trouble for Ben-Gurion."

B-G Boycotts Cabinet Meetings

JERUSALEM (P-O)—A stubborn Ben-Gurion this week turned a deaf ear to pleas that he participate in cabinet meetings. The doughty prime minister refused to sit with the ministers of the two parties whose failure to approve the arms sale to West Germany brought on the present crisis.

There seemed very little chance that a new cabinet could be rounded up, and at press time, President Ben-Zvi's actions seemed to indicate that the cabinet would go on as caretaker until the election this fall.

Ben-Gurion, despite press importunations, absented himself from the first cabinet meeting since the crisis, despite a number of serious matters up for consideration, including the Suez crisis.

MR. BEN-GURION was back at Sde Boker, with no one knowing how long he planned to remain in seclusion.

Ex-N. Y. Council Chapter Worker Reveals

Talk by Flanders Attacking Jews, Written by Council

Copyright 1959, National Jewish Post and Opinion By GERSHON JACOBSON

NEW YORK (P-O)—Arthur B. Rosenkrantz, who was discharged recently as executive director of the New York chapter of the anti-Zionist American Council for Judaism, revealed this week that the speech delivered by ex-Sen. Ralph E. Flanders of Vermont accusing U. S. Jews of dual loyalty (P-O, June 12) had been written by Leonard S. Sussman. Sussman is national executive director of the Council.

REACHED BY telephone in Springfield, Vt., Flanders said "I delivered the same opinion in the Senate when I spoke on that particular point."

In the speech, Flanders charged U. S. Jews with prior loyalty to Israel.

FLANDERS admitted however that "some corrections were made by the American Council for Judaism, so it would not be too drastic."

Rosenkrantz told The POST and OPINION that he saw Sussman writing and rewriting the speech, and that he heard him reading it on the telephone to some of the Council's top brass. He added that Flanders came to New York a day before he delivered the talk and that he saw Sussman go over the speech with Flanders.

THE EX-DIRECTOR said he was fired by the Council about two weeks after the Flanders talk. He said they blamed him of inefficiency, but that "this was not the reason."

Rosenkrantz told The POST and OPINION that he was the one "who invited Flanders to make the New York talk from a list of speakers given to him by Rabbi Elmer Berger, executive vice-president of the Council who recently toured the Arab countries in the Middle East but did not go to Israel.

ROSENKRANTZ, who holds a law degree and is a top insurance executive, said the list was headed by the Rev. Edward L. Elson, pastor of President Eisenhower, but that Dr Elson was not available for the date.

The next name on the list was that of Sen Flanders.

BY THE TIME Flanders reached New York, Sussman had rewritten the speech about six times, Rosenkrantz said. He asserted that on each revision Sussman cleared with other top Council officials, and changed the text constantly.

Rosenkrantz disclosed that Flanders got $300 for delivering the talk. Rosenkrantz quoted Sussman as saying that Flanders donated the amount to charity.

FLANDERS told The POST and OPINION that he didn't recall what he received. "I'll have to look it up in my book," he said. He added that it was a great deal under $500.

"Every Senator gets paid when he addresses an affair and I do too except in my own state where I talk without charge."

THE FORMER senator said he received about 8 or 10 letters after his talk. Two were unfavorable and the rest favorable. Sussman was on his vacation, and could not be reached by The POST and OPINION.

William Gottlieb, publicity agent for the Council, flatly refused to tell The POST and OPINION where Sussman was vacationing.

CLUB TO ACCEPT BUNCHE, BUT JEWS WERE MEMBERS

NEW YORK (P-O) — The uproar over the exclusion of Ralph Bunche, Nobel Prize winner who is a Negro, has resulted in a change of policy by the West Side Tennis Club, which this week announced it would accept applications from Jews and Negroes.

BUT ONE fact that has never leaked out is that some Jews have been members of the exclusive tennis club all along.

Wilfred Burglund, who told Bunche by telephone in declining his application that the club barred Negroes and Jews, has resigned.

The net result of Bunche's disclosure seemed to be a thorough airing of discrimination by private clubs and perhaps even a healthy rethinking of bars because of race and creed.

A SURVEY of exclusive clubs that although by-laws did not specifically bar Jews and Negroes, the effect of membership procedures was exactly that.

None of the clubs surveyed had Jewish members.

Jewish organizations joined the chorus of condemnation.

Rabbi B. Lapidus Dies in Cleveland

CLEVELAND (P-O) — Rabbi Benjamin S. Lapidus, 49, an organizer and former chairman of Midwestern region Rabbinical Council of America, and chairman of its Ohio chapter, died last week.

Rabbi Lapidus was spiritual leader of Sinai synagogue here, former leader of Beth Jacob congregation, Dayton, and of congregations in Elmira and Kew Gardens, N. Y.

Why Does The POST and OPINION Carry More Advertising Now Than At Any Time In Its History? The Answer Is Simple, OUR ADVERTISERS GET RESULTS!

Orange Ripens 3 Weeks Earlier

BEIT DAGON (P-O) — Israel has developed an early ripening Shamuti orange, which it is hoped will enable her to reach European markets with the oranges before her Spanish and Italian competitors.

The so-called "dream orange" ripens in mid-October, several weeks before the present shamuti.

Several more years of testing are necessary before the seedlings of the new strain will be made available to Israeli grove owners.

Mohar (Bride-Price) In Israel Up $150

JERUSALEM (P-O) — Arab suitors gave a doleful look at figures published by the Israel government showing that the mohar, the price the Arab must pay the father for a bride, has risen an additional $150 in the past several years to approximately $750.

Not too many Arab swains can raise the necessary amount, but love does seem to find a way, nevertheless.

Prinz Joins Silver Against View That Jewry Faces Assimilation

NEW YORK (P-O)—Two Jewish leaders of stature have aligned themselves against the view expressed by Nahum Goldmann, president of the World Jewish Congress, that assimilation was dooming Jews outside of Israel.

One, Rabbi Joachim Prinz, is president of the American Jewish Congress, one of the principal constituents of the World Jewish Congress.

The other is Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver, probably the world's leading Zionist next to Dr. Goldmann.

Dr. Prinz, speaking at a press conference last week in New York, said he was not among those who fear that the American Jewish community will "disappear." He added that those who speak in such terms make the mistake of applying European terminology and concepts to an American situation which is unique and without parallel.

Rabbi Silver told the annual Hadoar meeting here last month that "given devoted and purposeful leadership and adequate religious educational agencies we may look to the future of the American Jewish community with a good measure of confident hope."

Declaring that the American Jewish community owes it to itself and to history to take over its full measure of responsibility for carrying on the historic work of Judaism and Jewish survival, the Cleveland rabbi said we are not altogether unequipped for this task.

"American Jewry is perhaps overorganized. It possesses if not a sufficient, at least not a meager quota of synagogues, schools, libraries, rabbinical seminaries and social agencies. More are in the process of building."

IN HIS warning that assimilation is dooming Jews outside of Israel, Goldmann took issue with Philip Klutznick, past president of B'nai B'rith (P-O June 5) on his appraisal of the vigorous Jewish community of the diaspora.

He said Klutznick's assertion that the community will persist if only because of its current problems is not valid because the present generation of Jews did not live through the days of the Nazi or the creation of Israel.

"IF THE natural tendency for the gap between Israel and world Jewry is permitted to continue, said Goldman, "within 10 years the Jews of Israel and of the Diaspora will no longer have a common understanding."

Prinz admitted that close contact with Israel as the "greatest single source of Jewish values and Jewish culture" is essential. He took issue, however, with the defeatism and lack of confidence in both the potential of the American Jewish community and its ability to develop native forms of cultural life.

Calls For Better Israeli Singers

JERUSALEM (P-O)—The "unmusical depredations" of an Israeli singing couple at an International Ladies Garment Workers Union banquet at the Waldorf Astoria in New York came under bitter criticism from Arthur Saul Super, in a front page column in The Jerusalem Post. Super is an editor of the paper.

Super said that some criticized the "The absolute lack of standards of the many Israeli artists who perform at these functions in New York," but most listened "until the last wail and scream died away."

He quoted one of the ILGWU functionaries as saying "You just have to have some act from Israel. People who have paid $50 a plate can't be given just speeches."

Move Loses To Deny Aid To Biased Nations

WASHINGTON, D. C. (P-O)—With the Southern Senators voting against the resolution almost in a bloc, a move by Sen. Wayne Morse to amend the foreign aid bill to withhold aid to nations which, like Saudi Arabia, discriminate against Americans on a basis of religion, lost by four votes.

Senators opposed to the amendment pointed out that the U. S. itself practiced discrimination in its immigration legislation and that the amendment would constitute undue interference in domestic affairs of other nations.

RABBI FINDS WAY TO GET EVEN WITH COMMUNISTS

ATLANTA (P-O) — A rabbi who serves as a teacher of Hebrew at Achavath Achim synagogue here is getting even with the Russians—by using his knowledge of their language.

JACOB L. FRIEND, a native of Russia, had a score to settle with the Communists after they took it over, and later kicked him out of his second home, in China.

He had to wait a long time for his form of retaliation, however. It came about when the Russians began to make headlines with their Sputnicks. That was Rabbi Friend's cue.

NOW—IN HIS own small way—he gets even by spending several hours a day at the Georgia Tech library, plowing through Russian-language scientific reports or books.

The sharp-eyed, balding teacher ferrets through the texts carefully, his sharp eyes peeled for anything that might interest American scientists. He himself is a skilled astronomer.

And the experts, recognizing the value of Rabbi Friend's work, have come to look forward to his findings with a delight that transcends the unemotional attitude usually associated with scientists.

He refuses pay for his work.

RABBI FRIEND, who came to Atlanta a few years ago when he was in his mid-60s, puts in about six hours a day, five days a week on the work during the summer. During the school year, when he must teach and he has less free time, he spends about four hours each weekday in translation.

IT'S TIRESOME labor—and not always does it pay off.

"I classify the books and translate the names and make a small annotation on the contents of each," Friend told The POST and OPINION.

"EVERY MONTH, the Tech library gets out a list which is distributed nationally. So, anyone who sees something that interests him can write."

One pay-off occurred recently. FRIEND noticed a book on solar corpuscular fluxes (akin to sunspots). Scientists across the nation immediately asked for a complete translation. The volume at Tech apparently was the only one to reach this country.

"I don't know why the Rus-

Getting Even: Rabbi Jacob L. Friend pores through Russian volume ferretting out information important for the United States.

sians let that book out of their country," says Friend later.

SCIENTIFIC work, says Friend, is far more exciting than the million-dollar lumber business which the Reds stole from him and his partners in Shanghai.

"The Reds took it over," he recalled. "They don't take it away from you outright—they tax it so you give it away. It is impossible to pay them the taxes. And they impose such conditions you cannot work."

Friend, lived in Shanghai for many years following 1917. In 1919, he renounced his Russian citizenship. He was naturalized an American citizen in 1955

Hiring Bias Often Unknown To Execs

NEW YORK (P-O) — Presidents and high ranking officials of firms which discriminate in employment against Jews may not be aware of the what personnel in charge of employment do, the Anti-Defamation League said this week.

Writing in the current bulletin of the ADL, Harold Braverman said that often the hiring personnel "discriminate because they think top management expects them to... In turn, top management is often ignorant of what's going on and assumes that such practices don't exist or were long out-moded."

Braverman cited specific cases where this situation existed and was promptly corrected.

New Haifa Subway Won't Run on Sabbath

HAIFA (P-O) — This city in Israel, the only major one in which buses operate on the Sabbath, will not run its new subway, scheduled to open next month, on Saturday.

The decision followed an appeal from President Ben-Zvi, who had been importuned by Orthodox leadership to intervene.

Zionists Talk, Talk About Aliya

(First of a Series)
By M. Z. FRANK

The subject of aliya from America to Israel has been discussed for more than 10 years in a very intensive and emotion-laden manner, but seldom very intelligently. Usually the discussion consists of Ben-Gurion saying something and everybody answering. Most often, the reply has nothing to do with the Ben-Gurion statement.

Frank Ben-Gurion's most famous—or most notorious—statement was made in 1951 a short time before the Knesset passed a law giving special recognition to the Jewish Agency and the World Zionist movement.

I am quoting from memory: "If, after the establishment of the State of Israel in 1948, not even five Zionist leaders in America—not even five of them—moved to Israel—then something is wrong with the movement. I do not say that the example of these five leaders would have engendered a mass movement of American Jews to Israel, but it would have had some effect on some American Jews. The fact that not even five such leaders came to settle in Israel shows that the Zionist movement is morally bankrupt."

THE ABOVE statement contains one fact, one opinion and one conclusion:

The fact is not even five top leaders from America settled in Israel since 1948. No one can deny that fact. Some of the top leaders occasionally encouraged rumors that they were contemplating settling in Israel, but none did settle.

In B-G's opinion—if they did so, others would have followed. That is something no one can prove or disprove.

THE CONCLUSION — that the Zionist movement is morally bankrupt is now being repeated by Dr. Goldmann himself, in different words and giving different reasons.

It is remarkable that no one usually argues with Ben-Gurion on the basis of his statement of the five top leaders who failed to settle. The argument is nearly always about opinions attributed to him, but which he never expresses.

FOR INSTANCE, Ben-Gurion never said that the only way to be a Jew is to settle in Israel; he never said that he expected all five million American Jews to come to Israel; he never said that he expected five thousand Jews from America to come to Israel in one day (He would probably be more than pleased if five thousand came in one year and stayed).

What he did say was that a Jew who calls himself a Zionist ought at least to plan that he or his children should some day settle in Israel. Otherwise he may be a fine Jew, a fine friend of Israel, but he is not a Zionist according to Ben-Gurion's understanding. But, adds Ben-Gurion, if anybody insists on calling himself a Zionist while not planning aliya and not encouraging it, there is nothing to stop him. After all, says Ben-Gurion, there are countries which call themselves "People's Democracies," although their governments are not elected by the people. We can't stop them.

ABOUT THIS last point, there has been a deluge of arguments by Zionists who have been busy rewriting Zionist history—which most of them have never read anyway. Zionism, they say, is not just Israel; it is not even mainly Israel; Zionism, they argue, never meant aliya. None of these Zionists has ever quoted a Zionist classic to support his views.

But arguing about the meaning of Zionism and about the so-called "status" of the Zionist movement is neither here nor there. The question is aliya.

AN OLEH—a settler in Israel—does not have to be a registered Zionist; he does not have to be able to dance the hora; a knowledge of Hebrew helps, but it is not everything. An oleh from America to Israel has to be one who wants to settle in Israel. makes the move and stays there. Our concern is with those three stages: how to make him want to go there, how to make him go there and how to make him stay.

How can you make an American Jew want to go to Israel?

Obviously, none of the five top leaders in American Zionism who failed to set the example can have much influence over an American Jew to make him want to go to Israel. The five top leaders—and the other fifty-five who think they are among the five—know it and feel uncomfortable about it. So they usually make speeches—silly speeches, for the most part.

BUT EVEN a good speech on aliya cannot have much effect. Of the good speeches on aliya I only heard two—one by Silver in 1949 and another by Goldstein in 1958. Perhaps there was a third one, but I never heard about it.

Ben-Gurion is in a better position to exert a moral influence on prospective olim, because he is not one of the five top leaders who did not settle in Israel. But it is doubtful whether his speeches on aliya achieve much more than getting the goat of American Zionists. Since, next to Plato and yogi, baiting American Zionists is one of Ben-Gurion's hobbies, there is not much point in arguing with him. But, then, what else have American Zionists to talk about?

THE SUREST way to influence an American Jew to become an oleh is the example and the inducement of another American oleh, "I've done it, why can't you?" is a more telling argument than any other. But that argument has to be followed up by some organized effort.

In this respect a good Zionist organization might be of help. But as there is no good Zionist organization in existence today, the most the Zionists can do is provide some funds for the olim.

If and when there arises the miracle of a rejuvenated and regenerated American Zionism, it will be able to do more for aliya than merely provide funds. Just now the only thing to do is to finance the Association of Americans and Canadians in Israel.

U.S. Rabbi Sent To South America

NEW YORK (P-O)—The Conservative movement in the U. S. has sent its first rabbi to South America. He is Rabbi Marshall T. Meyer, of Norwich, Conn., who will leave on July 24, for Buenos Aires, where he will be assistant to Rabbi Guillermo Schlesinger of the Congregacion Israelita.

The appointment is under the auspices of the World Council of Synagogues (Conservative), and is expected to be followed by others to be assigned to Latin American communities in the near future.

WANTS HAPPY ENDING FOR 'THE DIARY OF ANNE FRANK'

● Editor Jewish POST and OPINION

Your concern in the matter of such a poignant movie as "The Diary of Anne Frank" not having drawn as expected (P-O, June 5) brings to mind the fact that I have many times considered Hollywood ought purposely to have given this particular screen-play a fictitiously happy ending to achieve worthwhile results in more ways than one, financially, of course, included . . .

IT MAY not be too late. There have been other films remade wholly or in part. I WOULD always be prepared to present my conception of a "box office" ending for another "Life of Anne Frank" movie with a rounding off to include an address by a well-chosen reconteur such as Danny Kaye relating the actual differences between the fictional and true-life ending. There are many interesting byways which could have been employed to make the whole a great moving picture experience, and a draw the like of which even "Gone with the Wind" could have admired.

Exhibition Shows Some Hebrew Can Be Taught In 1 Hour

OCONOMOC, Wisc. (P-O) — Mrs. Libby Braverman, well-known Hebrew teacher and author, showed how eight people who had no knowledge of Hebrew could begin to recognize words and letters, and understand the English meaning of the "shma" and the blessing over bread in a relatively few minutes.

The hour-long experiment proved Mrs. Braverman's contention that "a child can be taught the fundamentals and meaning of Hebrew prayer in an amazingly short time."

The demonstration took place at the summer institute here for religious school teachers and administrators of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations (Reform).

AFTER THE completion of the test, the participants were able to interrelate words in both Hebrew and English.

One person exclaimed that "I feel like the top of my head was zipped off and new knowledge poured in."

MRS. BRAVERMAN'S tools were flash cards, flannelgraph and a sparkling enthusiasm.

dazzle American audiences.

Now the gigantic Russian Festival of Music and Dance, at Madison Square Garden, has firmly established the beachhead to the sound of shouting, stamping cheering, sellout crowds.

THE FESTIVAL tour will continue with an engagement at the Lyric Opera House, Chicago, July 21-25; at the Hollywood Bowl, July 29 to Aug. 2, and at San Francisco's Cow Palace, Aug. 4-6. Further dates have not yet been set.

paced show can mildly be described as stupendous. The huge, rock-solid building shook with the pandemonium of thousands of feet stamping out a massive ovation and of roar upon roar of approval.

TO BE SURE, much was gymnastic and athletic, but for sheer, blood-curdling excitement the Russians are unmatched. Their performance even surpassed the impact of the Moiseyev dancers in 1957, who were so good that the critics drowned willingly in their own hyperbole.

This was the lineup at the Garden: Piatnitsky Russian Folk Choir and Dancers; Kiev State Ballet, the State Dance companies of Georgia, Armenia and Kazakhstan; Galya Izmailova, prima ballerina of the Uzbekistan Dance co.; soloists from the Moiseyev Dance co., from the Leningrad Ballet and the Bolshoi Ballet, and vocal soloists from the Bolshoi Theatre and the Kiev State Opera.

THE 200 gorgeously costumed performers and native musicians filled the huge stage and were attended by a full symphony orchestra in the pit. Everywhere the color was brilliant, the sound compelling, the movement breathtaking.

These were the show-stoppers:

a waltz danced by Liudmila Bogomolova and Stanislov Vlasov of the Bolshoi to stunning choreography by Alexander Lapauri. The soloists' incredible technique, their grace and astonishing lifts and leaps drew gasps from the audience. Also, the Georgians' unbelievable boot-dancing on unpadded toes in "The Competition," their knife-brandishing, scaring leaps and stage-crashing knee descents; Yevgeni Semenov's unique and delightful "Two Boys in a Fight," a feature of the Moiseyev repertoire; Izmailova's petite charm and movement in "Zang," an Uzbek dance accompanied on the bubna, a gong-like instrument whirled in the air and clapped at the same time.

Also, "The Washerwoman," a Moldavian dance choreographed by Igor Moiseyev and danced by his people, which showed so clearly how superior is his contribution to the dance; Nina Timofeyeva and Yuri Zhdanov of the Bolshoi in the "Swan Lake" adagio, both artists imparting to the work an ethereal quality so elusive of achievement, and the entire Piatnitsky presentation.

THE 55-MEMBER Piatnitsky group, a half-century old, gave the first third of the program—six choral selections, most with some dancing, and six dances alone. One of the songs, in alternate Russian and English, was by Stephen Foster—"Domuk Nad Rekoj," which translates into "Swanee River."

There were opera stars who strode with their arias to the front of the platform and gave forth in rich, "Russian-type" voices; precision-trained, fine-boned Armenians and their curiously ritualistic dancing; mock horses and waving kerchiefs; great leaps and ingenious maneuvers, agile bodies strained to the utmost, and athleticism infused with utter abandon—perhaps one of the secrets of the Russians' overpowering success.

The Garden has seen a lot, from ice skaters to fiddle players, from prize fighters to trained fleas, but nothing so tumultuous and overwhelming as this. If we were asked "Can you top this?" our answer would have to be: "Who wants to?"

New Dairy Restaurant Opens In New York

NEW YORK (P-O) — A new dairy restaurant opened last week on the lower East Side.

The establishment, Junior's Dairy Restaurant, is under the personal supervision of Irving Davidman, son of the famous restaurateur Henry Davidman of Henry's in Forest Hills, N. Y.

The pastry for Junior's will come from Henry's Bake Shop, also in Forest Hills, which is supervised by the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations.

The store will be closed Saturday and Jewish holidays.

WHAT FOODS THESE MORSELS BE

HAVE YOU TRIED CHILLED SOUPS AS YOUR BEVERAGE?

By SARAH LIEBER

Have you tried serving chilled soups as a first course, or as a beverage during the meal?

For your dairy meals, try shaking up one can of your favorite milhig soup, such as cream of tomato, cream of aparagus, cream of celery, and so on, with a can of evaporated milk and some ice cubes. Your blender is fine for this, or even a tightly covered quart jar.

FOR THE MEAT meals, a combination of vegetables, with tomato juice, all run through the blender or finely chopped, then chilled, makes a good appetizer.

Add a little extra salt to the meals during hot spells to help the body maintain its fluid balance, and supply the natural salt lost through perspiration.

OF COURSE, any number of cold fruit soups are good at this time of year.

Use canned pitted sour cherries for a fine borscht. If you want an added taste appeal, add some wine before serving at a meat meal.

A combination of fresh fruits, now so plentiful, cooked together and spiced with a dash of cinnamon and cloves, then chilled, makes an excellent soup. Add pretty green lime slices for garnish and for extra zip.

And of course, egg-nogs of various kinds, and milk shakes and home-made ice cream sodas, always are welcome for that adding nourishment and for fun, too.

BANANA EGGNOG

- 4 eggs, separated
- 4 cups milk
- 1/2 cup chocolate syrup
- 1 1/2 cups mashed bananas
- 1 quart chocolate ice cream

Combine egg yolks, milk, chocolate syrup, and bananas. Blend well. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold in. Pour into tall glasses, topping each with a scoop of ice cream. Garnish with a slice of banana. Serve cold. Serves eight.

STRAWBERRY EGGNOG

- 1 pint fresh strawberries
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 4 eggs, separated
- 1/4 tsp. salt
- 3 cups milk
- 1 cup heavy cream
- 2 tps. rum flavoring (optional)

Wash berries, remove hulls and chop fine. Add 1/2 cup of the sugar and the rum flavoring. Let stand while preparing other ingredients. Beat egg yolks and gradually add the sugar and salt. Gradually stir in milk and cream. Cook in top of double boiler over hot but not boiling water stirring constantly until the mixture thickens. Chill. Add berries. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold into the mixture. Pour into tall glasses and garnish with strawberries. Very rich and lovely to look at as well as to drink, and a great favorite with the youngsters. Serves eight.

PEACH EGGNOG

- 1 1/2 cups fresh peaches, peeled and sliced
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 2 tps. lemon juice
- 1/2 tps. almond flavoring
- 4 egg whites
- 4 cups milk

Mash peaches, reserving a few perfect slices for garnish. Add lemon juice and almond extract. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Gradually add sugar. Add milk to peaches, and fold in egg whites. Pour into tall glasses and garnish with peach slices. Serves eight.

FRESH WATERMELON COOLER

- 3 cups watermelon juice
- 3/4 cup fresh lemon juice
- 1/2 cup water
- 1/2 cup sugar
- fresh mint

To make melon juice dice ripe melon using about twice the amount of watermelon as juice needed and press through a sieve. Combine with the other ingredients. Mix well. Chill. Serve over ice cubes or crushed ice for a different drink. Garnish with sprigs of mint. Serves six.

CRANBERRY COOLER

- 1 quart icewater
 - 1 can cranberry sauce
 - 1/4 tsp. salt
 - 1/4 cup sugar
 - juice of 1 lemon
 - 1/2 pint vanilla ice cream
- Break up cranberry sauce with a fork. Mix with water, sugar, juice and salt. Beat in ice cream until almost melted. Pour into tall glasses. Serve at once. Note, commercial cranberry juice may be used. Add water and sugar to taste. Beat in ice cream as above. Serves six.

FRUIT AND BUTTERMILK COOLER

- 1 1/2 cups chilled canned fruit juice, any desired combination
- 3 tbsps. sugar
- 3 cups chilled buttermilk juice of 1 lemon

Combine all ingredients and stir until sugar is completely dissolved. Chill thoroughly. Mixture will not curdle if well chilled. The best juices are apricot, pineapple, cherry and grape. A little experimentation with various combinations will be very rewarding. Serves four to six.

RASPBERRY SHRUB

- 1 (10 oz.) pkg. frozen raspberries
- 1 (6 oz.) can orange juice concentrate
- 1 cup water
- 2 cups wine, either red or white

Defrost and puree raspberries by using a sieve, or place in blender. Add water, juice and wine. Blend until smooth. Chill thoroughly. If desired, serve with a spoonful of raspberry sherbet to each glass.

Kosher Wine Can Add Extra Touch to Meal

There are now so many fine kosher wines of every variety, both imported and domestic, that we may use them in various delightful ways. They add a little extra touch to a meal, as a beverage. And in cooking a half cupful of wine in the gravy, or a small amount in desserts or other dishes gives the food an unusual flavor, and a gourmet touch.

Third of Conservative Shuls Elect Women

NEW YORK (P-O) — A survey conducted by the National Women's League of the United Synagogues (Conservative) shows that about 35 per cent of Conservative congregations elect women as officers, and about half elect them to their boards.

The survey showed that there were at least two women heading Conservative congregations in the United States.

True Instant Coffee Now at Grocers

The long-sought answer to a coffee connoisseur's brew, coupled with the quick convenience of instant coffee, is now no further from fulfillment than your neighborhood grocer's shelf.

Under your very eyes (and nose!) as you add hot water to Swee-touch-nee instant coffee, this latest addition to the food fancier's list of fine treats literally floods your cup with the deep, rich, aromatic brew of choice roaster-fresh coffee.

For iced coffee, a favorite standby in warm-weather months, Swee-touch-nee instant coffee requires no hot water, integrating almost instantly in pre-chilled or tap water to make a perfect summer refresher.

I THINK AS I PLEASE

All It Takes to Make a Woman Happy: A Day In Jerusalem

By CARL ALPERT

HAIFA—For me it was a routine business trip to Jerusalem—up by train in the morning, a series of appointments—and return by the afternoon train. I had almost forgotten that a trip to Jerusalem could be a special event until I casually suggested to Nechamah that she accompany me. She accepted with alacrity, and this is a report of her trip to Jerusalem, as I understood it.

WE SET THE alarm at 5:30 a. m. in order to catch the 6:25 to the capital.

Three and a half hours after departure from Haifa I stuffed my letters and documents back into my briefcase and looked up. Nechamah was smiling broadly. The day was already a success. For the first time in as long as she could remember she had been able to read through the Jerusalem Post and the daily Haaretz, from first column to last, without any interruptions from callers, peddlers, neighbors, children, telephone—or me! So much is going on in the world, that she had not been able to follow previously.

A SHORT walk from the station reside our friends the David Macarovs. We stopped at the corner grocery store to purchase four bars of chocolate, one for each of the four Macarov children, and then climbed to their apartment.

Their imported American chimes knocker was out of order, but even our pounding on the door brought no response. They were not at home. The hour was late. We were hungry. We looked at the four bars of chocolate. Only a lightning calculation was required to determine how many bars we would need for our own three children back in Haifa. We shared the fourth bar on the spot, and beat a hasty retreat lest the Macarovs return in the interim.

THE NEXT stop was at the home of matriarchal Chana Salomon, who had immigrated to Palestine from Cincinnati in 1900. At the age of 76 she is today one of the grand old ladies of Jerusalem: wife of Haym Solomon, head of the Assia Pharmaceuticals co., and mother, among others, of Yaakov Salomon, one of Israel's leading lawyers. She plied us with cake and drink, and Nechamah came away with a recipe for her plum pie.

Everyone admires those hand-embroidered Yemenite blouses, and most tourists buy one or two. Nechamah had the address of a little workshop where they are made, and not many moments later we called upon Esther Zeitz at 14 Bezael st. Our immediate purpose: to buy a party dress for our seven-year-old Ruth, as partial recompense for leaving her home today.

The choice was made, and the purchase accomplished to mutual satisfaction. Half what it would have cost in Haifa, Nechamah whispered to me.

The day was getting along well. We paused for a moment to watch the nimble fingers of the girls in the next room, and then went on.

LUNCH WAS AT Shemesh Oriental restaurant on Ben Yehudah st.

No need to tell what it means to a housewife to eat where she need not bother with preparations or clean-up afterwards. Busy, brainy, brave balabostas deserve to eat out. Our menu: Humus with Tehina, pittah and Shashlik with chipsim.

A CONTENTED and satiated stroll thereafter included window-shopping, and, before I knew it, we were inside Jerusalem's nearest approach to a department store.

Nechamah explained that we were short of dessert forks. Hadn't I noticed that when we had 16 guests at the house one evening last week she had had to borrow forks from Mrs. Gil? Since I always eat my cake with my fingers I had not noticed.

She was satisfied with six elegant silver-plated dessert forks at a cost of around five and a half Israel pounds.

THIS DID NOT take up the entire day, of course. Between times I kept an appointment with David Rose at the King David hotel and discussed with him affairs of the American Technion society, of which he is president. I also had my meeting with Supreme Court Justice Moshe Landau, also in connection with Technion matters.

Our train was due to leave at 4:07.

The Mekasher bus got us to the station in ample time, and we sought suitable reading matter for the trip. Our eye fell on the new controversial book, "New Face in the Mirror," written by 19-year-old Yael Dayan, daughter of Israel's former chief of staff.

Nechamah raced through the short book, and turned the back cover as our train screamed its way into Haifa's port area. She liked the book and wants me to read it; also our 16½-year-old Yammy, who may learn from it something about the Israel army which she is to enter soon. From what I could read over Nechamah's shoulder, she will probably learn a lot of other things, too.

That, in short, was Nechamah's day in Jerusalem. A full, interesting and happy day.

It doesn't take much to make a woman happy, does it?

DIGEST OF THE YIDDISH PRESS

Arms-for-Germany Argument Called Most-Agonizing Dilemma

By Rabbi SAMUEL M. SILVER

Satan himself could not devise a more agonizing dilemma than the one which brought down the Ben-Gurion government, writes S. Rosenfeld, in the Forward. Again the Jewish world will not Nazidom, pointing out that France, Israel's best friend, is now close to Germany. His opponents retort that nothing can justify a business transaction with the murderers of Jews (and besides, they add wryly, the grenade deal involves only a few paltry million). BG taunts his opponents by asking them whether they would have turned down reparations from Bonn. So the debate rages. Writer Reacts Indignantly To Society to Seek Converts Indignantly the Forward's Rabbi A. B. Shurin reacts to the news that a Jewish Information society, devoted to recruiting newcomers to Judaism, has been formed: Clean your own house before clean others. To this Talmudical quotation, Shurin adds, about Reform Jews who, he believes, began the society: They have such poor luck in converting Jews to Judaism that they are now going elsewhere.

"I was in the West Indies, but she found me in three minutes"

"One day a friend wanted to phone me. Normally this wouldn't be a problem, since we both live in the same town. But I happened to be in Jamaica in the British West Indies on vacation. My friend could only tell the Buffalo operator that I was visiting a classmate who lived with a married sister in a little town near the capital of Jamaica. With just my classmate's name and the local Post Office address, the operator went to work. And in just three minutes my friend and I were talking."

ORDER OF QUAKING ZIONISTS

The discussion of aliya by M. Z. Frank in these pages brings up for the attention of the American Jewish community, and especially for American Zionism, its sorest failure.

THERE ARE A combination of reasons for the present blank when it comes to American aliya to Israel. And it is necessary to dwell on them to avoid a continuation of the situation where out of 5 million Jews, many of whom are idealistic and resourceful young people who would eagerly answer the pioneering challenge that is Israel, only a trickle does make the move.

To ascribe the fault to the mercenary interest of young American Jewry is an easy rationalization for the Zionist leadership which today lacks the courage of its Zionist convictions, and has brought the Zionist movement to its lowest ebb in years.

BEN-GURION'S INSISTENCE on American aliya is legitimate. The American Zionist is willing to contribute his money in sums which approach the sacrificial, but when it comes to sending his sons and daughters to join in the glorious experiment of building a Jewish state he balks.

This is to be expected of just ordinary parents, but what about the Zionist who stood up and dared the antagonism of his fellow Jews and of world officialdom to aid the movement which some day, but not possibly in our generation, hoped to establish a Jewish state in Palestine?

They, too, it is clear now were preaching of a Jewish state for refugees, but not a Jewish state whose influences would transform world Jewry into the high ethical and moral society that it was in the days when it lived on its own land some 2000 years ago.

Like every movement, an American aliya requires leadership, and this of course is lacking. Except for occasional lip service, the mention of aliya is taboo in Zionist circles.

WE HOLD TO the position we've maintained for years, that given the proper inspiration and moral climate thousands of young American Jews every year would opt to go to Israel to help implant there the vision of democracy bred in them by the fusion of their American and Jewish heritage.

Non-Jewish America would applaud. Only a fearful U. S. Jewish community—headed by the order of quaking Zionists—would close their eyes, ostrich-like, in fear of what some bigots might say.

FRANKFURTER VS FLANDERS

For the benefit of ex-Sen. Ralph Flanders and Clarence Coleman, and the others of the American Council for Judaism who currently are making the charge that U. S. Jews are disloyal, here's a quotation from a man who strangely enough isn't deterred from aid to Israel by what Flanders, Coleman, et al, happen to believe or say.

THE MAN MIGHT even be in a little better position than either Mr. Flanders or Mr. Coleman to pass judgment on his fellow-citizens as to their loyalty to the U. S.

He said:

"I interpret your award not as recognition of my work as a member of the Supreme Court but as a response to the total endeavor of my life and, more particularly, for that share of it which relates to my participation as an American Jew to bring to pass what is now Israel with its decade of glorious achievement."

THESE SENTIMENTS were expressed, if you haven't already guessed it, by Justice Felix Frankfurter. He uttered them on the occasion of receiving the distinguished public service award of the Farband Labor Zionist order.

FRIDAY, JULY 17, 1959

The EDITOR'S CHAIR . . .

We have a letter from two college brothers in a small Pennsylvania town asking if there is some way they could work their way over to Israel next summer—perhaps on an Israeli ship or by performing some other service.

THE JEWISH Agency for Palestine announces this week that 540 American Jewish youth of high school and college age have embarked for Israel as part of the group's Israel summer institute. Now in its eleventh season, the summer institutes give young American Jews an opportunity to study and visit Israel.

This of course is valuable, but because of the cost—approximately $900—it is limited to a select group whose parents can afford the fee.

IF THE COST of a summer in Israel could be reduced to somewhere in the neighborhood of $250 more or less, we feel that, instead of hundreds, thousands of U. S. Jewish college and high school youths would make the visit.

Obviously, in view of the urgent need for funds to aid newcomers to Israel to establish themselves—which is the principal work of the Jewish Agency whose funds come from the United Jewish Appeal—no one is going to suggest that thousands of dollars be diverted to making possible cheap summer foreign tours for American youngsters, even though the destination is Israel.

BUT IT WOULD be within the realm of American Jewish organizations to charter steamships for the trip to Israel; and, with the young people themselves doing all the work except that of sailing the ship, the cost might be brought down to figures in the reach of practically everyone.

Then instead of 500 a summer, the figure would be closer to 5,000 and maybe 25,000.

OF COURSE arrangements would be required in Israel to accommodate this kind of influx, but the difficulties are not insurmountable. No doubt the kibbutzim could absorb thousands of these youngsters for at least part of their stay, during which of course they would work in the kibbutzim to pay for their upkeep.

This is a challenging project, but it has its rewards, and we believe it to be eminently feasible. What is needed is leadership with imagination. Do we have it?

FOR THOSE WHO are keeping a scrapbook on the low level to which synagogue practices have stooped in recent years, add the fact that a Conservative congregation in the Midwest, now in its new million dollar building, keeps its air-conditioning off for services during the blazing Saturday morning heat.

We regard as proper the action of Beth El Congregation of Waterbury, Conn. (P-O, March 20) whose rabbi has announced that unless a relative of the deceased is present the name will not be mentioned before the yahrzeit prayer is recited.

THE POSITION OF Rabbi Joseph Smith is that the kin of the deceased must care to memorialize him on the anniversary of his death.

Like many other rituals in Jewish life, the yahrzeit has tended to become despoiled of its meaning, and to be discarded with other lovely emotional aspects of Judaism.

THE DAY WHEN rabbis gave in to every demand of their congregation for a relief from Jewish observance has almost, but not quite, disappeared. Where the rabbis have taken a determined stand, the people have learned to respect both the rabbi and the rabbi's religion.

LOOKING BACKWARD . . .

500 Go To Mindanao

20 YEARS AGO

Five hundred Jewish refugees found a new home on the Island of Mindanao in the Philippines, as a plan to make Mindanao the largest Jewish territorial colony in the world was put into operation . . . 32 governments were represented at an Intergovernmental Refugee Committee convention to consider the tragedy and the fate of Jews still within the Reich.

Italian racial legislation was held responsible for the conversion of 4,500 Jews (more than 10 per cent of the entire Jewish population in Italy) to Christianity in four years . . . a Greek schooner carrying 697 Jewish illegal immigrants, and flying the blue-white Zionist flag, steamed boldly into Haifa harbor. The immigrants immediately were arrested.

Mohandas K. Ghandi withdrew "without any reservation" an allegation to the effect that the Jews "wanted America and England to fight Germany on their behalf."

10 YEARS AGO

Israel planned to institute universal military training for the entire population.

FIVE YEARS AGO

Egyptian police raided 120 Jewish homes in Cairo and arrested young men charged with learning Hebrew. After a warning, they were released . . . Israel planned to invest $28 million from West German reparations in 12 ships to be built in three years in West German shipyards.

BOOKS AND RELIGIOUS ARTICLES

Dr. Melech Schachter Notes Every Variance Between Babylonian and Jerusalem Mishnas

THE BABYLONIAN AND JERUSALEM MISHNAH TEXTUALLY COMPARED, by Melech Schachter (Mosad Harav Kook).

Consulting early printed editions and MSS in world libraries and universities, Dr. Schachter has completed a stupendous scholarly labor of reconciling the differences in the two Mishnahs.

Burstein

Every commentator and codifier has been consulted in connection with the text. Most of the variations are traced to the inevitable errors of the scribe and the printer; a number are ascribed, by internal evidence and reference, to tannaitic literature, to the alternate readings and judgments of Judah the Prince, who compiled the Mishnah about 210 CE.

Every mishnah varying in the two Talmuds is cited in adjacent columns, with full expository notes. There are a comprehensive introduction in Hebrew and an English preface.

From this bare statement of Schachter's achievement, one comprehends both the extraordinary learning and diligence of the rabbi, and the immense value of the book to other rabbis and scholars. Though printed in Israel, the work is also sponsored by Yeshiva university, where Schachter has attained distinction as a teacher in its several schools.

ENCYCLOPEDIA OF BIBLICAL INTERPRETATION IV, by Menachem M. Kasher $6.50 (American Biblical Encyclopedia Society).

Dr. Kasher continues his grandiose project of an English Tora Shelma, with its commentary, literary anthology, and notes for each verse of the Tora, arranged in the manner of a Talmud text. The fourth volume of the score or more contemplated covers the Genesis sidraot Toledot, Vayetze, and Vayyishlach, Chapters 25 to 36. The extent and variety of the material is ever to be marveled at. May the series be concluded beyamenu.

ISRAEL, by David Catarivas, $1.25 (Vista-Viking).

The best of the Vista series, and the best of present guides to the new state, has been excellently translated by F. Carter. It relates the entire story of the Jews and the Holy Land, and of Zionism, and is filled with the information everyone should acquire.

Council Hits 'Exodus' Zionist Propaganda

Editor Jewish POST and OPINION "The Editor's Chair" is quite correct when it says, on May 29, that "It is a pity that Leon Uris can't write" and that "my professional background kept telling my brain that this (Exodus) was trash." But if the editor is also correct in his contention that American Jews read "Exodus" because it is Jewish history, then he ought to stop listening to so many speeches and go back to reading history without what he calls the "sugarcoating."

IN SPITE of his professional background, the editor apparently took at face value what Mr. Uris wrote on the fly leaf of his book, "Most of the events in 'Exodus' are a matter of history and public record."

One of the items of public record is the Balfour Declaration, which Mr. Uris introduces as follows, on Page 257:

"As the negotiations between the Zionists and the British were brought to a close, Lord Balfour, the British Foreign Minister, wrote a letter to Lord Rothschild, with the revelation:

"His Majesty's Government view with favor the establishment of a national home for the Jewish people, and will use their best endeavors to facilitate the achievement of this object."

THE ABOVE, presented in italics and using the exact language of the Balfour Declaration, would give the impression that this is it, when in fact it is only an excerpt. When you look at the full text of the Declaration (following this letter) you will readily see why Mr. Uris, as a Zionist propagandist, found it advisable to omit the following significant lines:

"it being clearly understood that nothing shall be done which may prejudice the civil and religious rights of existing non-Jewish communities in Palestine, or the rights and political status enjoyed by Jews in any other country."

I find it of particular interest that way back in 1917, long before the establishment of the state of Israel, a pro-Zionist document such as the Balfour Declaration was sensitive to the possibility that the establishment of a "national home for the Jewish people" might affect "the rights and political status enjoyed by Jews" in other countries. To my mind, the handwriting on the wall that was visible in 1917 has not blurred with time, but has, in fact, become bold and glaring headlines.

Dear Lord Rothschild:

I have much pleasure in conveying to you, on behalf of His Majesty's Government, the following declaration of sympathy with Jewish Zionist aspirations which has been submitted to, and approved by, the Cabinet.

"His Majesty's Government view with favour the establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people, and will use their best endeavours to facilitate the achievement of this object, it being clearly understood that nothing shall be done which may prejudice the civil and religious rights of existing non-Jewish communities in Palestine, or the rights and political status enjoyed by Jews in any other country."

I should be grateful if you would bring this declaration to the knowledge of the Zionist Federation

Yours,
Arthur James Balfour

PROUDLY RECALLS ALPERT AS YOUNG JUDAEA MEMBER

Editor Jewish POST and OPINION In another of his informative and worthwhile reports from Israel, Carl Alpert properly avers that "someone should give Ben-Gurion facts about Young Judaea" (P-O, June 26).

HE PROCEEDS to do so very effectively.

However, in listing some of its distinguished graduates in Israel, he modestly omits the name of Carl Alpert.

I WELL RECALL his membership and activity in Young Judaea, particularly in the David A. Lourie club in Cambridge, Mass., in the early 30s.

Although only a high-school student at the time, he possessed a mature knowledge and understanding of Zionism, as well as a burning zeal to promote its cause. He talked and wrote with brilliance.

That he is living and working in (and for) Eretz Yisrael, and making a fine contribution to its growth and future, is no surprise to those of us who knew him in Young Judaea three decades ago!

SAYS WEINSTEIN CONFUSES EQUALITY, LOVE, TOLERANCE WITH ASSIMILATION

Editor Jewish POST and OPINION As an observant rabbi, I have long been hurt and frightened by the enormous damage done to Judaism by the Reform movement and its leaders, despite the contradictions and frustrations inherent in that movement. However, never has the potentially tragic harm been more graphically illustrated than in the article of a Reform leader, Jacob Weinstein, writing in the June 26 issue of The POST and OPINION.

"I AM MUCH disturbed . . ." begins Dr. Weinstein, and the sources of his disturbance we discover to be two. One is the warning of the head of the World Zionist organization, Dr. Nahum Goldmann, against the menace of assimilation in the free world. The other is the advice of Rabbi Goldberger of Denver to young Jews to refuse to date non-Jews lest they open the door to intermarriage.

Attacking these warnings, Dr. Weinstein asks: "Why should we start to build walls around ourselves . . . ? Is it not time however for the more rational forces among us to resist this traumatic recidivism? . . . To bar them from inter-faith or even interracial experience is an admission on our part of uncertainty about our own values or our unwillingness to abide the results of a free trade of cultures. Better to take the losses attendant on the exercise of freedom than accept the gain of a superimposed caution."

IT IS ALMOST logical that a Reform leader might say these words. Having rejected the exclusiveness of Judaism, having rejected the distinctive ritual of the Jewish faith, clinging only to a universal "ethics," sub-consciously Jacob Weinstein sees no great difference between a Jew or non-Jew so long as both do not beat their grandmother. Inter-marriage and assimilation to him do not convey the pain and sense of loss that the average Jewish parent feels.

Glibly, he takes to task those who fear intermarriage by proclaiming that this means they are uncertain and afraid to trade culturally.

WHAT UTTER nonsense!

Were he a scholar in the tradition of a true rabbi he would know of the countless discussions held by rabbis with pagans and churchmen at the time of the Talmud and during the Middle Ages. And need I mention Maimonides, who trod the market place of world culture and yet who solemnly declares the prohibition of intermarriage in his Mishne Torah?

NO. IF ANYONE is uncertain of his belief it is Jacob Weinstein.

Let us not confuse equality and love and tolerance with assimilation. Certainly we are prepared to live on the same streets with non-Jews. We shall surely go to schools with them. By all means we work side by side with them. We are commanded by G-d to love them, help them, build a better world side by side. However, respect for my fellow human being and his belief does not necessitate my destroying my own. I may love a man but I need not share his bed.

I, FOR ONE, am not so sure that a child raised in Jacob Weinstein's way, with the rejection of the obligation to observe tradition and the rituals of Judaism, will have the strength or desire to reject intermarriage. I am not so positive that on his own initiative he will see very much wrong with it, especially when his passion for the girl outweighs his passion for Judaism by many thousands of degrees.

I for one will continue to urge Jewish parents to guide and teach their children to reject that "first date", and I hope that this will succeed in some measure in opening the eyes of the average Jew to the subtle threat of the Reform version of Judaism. The prophet Isaiah long ago described it and its leaders when he thundered: "Woe unto those that say of the evil it is good and of the good it is evil, that put darkness for light and light for darkness, that put bitter for sweet and sweet for bitter."

No Dearth of Canadian Rabbis to Greet Queen

Editor Jewish POST and OPINION I would like to correct a false and misleading impression created by the caption of an article in your June 26 issue, dealing with the royal tour.

'Canadian Officials Couldn't Find A Rabbi to Greet The Queen For Jewish Community', your headline blazoned forth. In the first place, I dare say, there is no shred of evidence anywhere that Canadian officials, eager for an opportunity to honor the Jewish community, had at all embarked on a "fruitless" search for a chief rabbi. Indeed, the rabbinate was quite well represented in the program surrounding the royal visit.

In Toronto, where our synagogue is located, the visit of Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip was a spectacular event and one in which Jewish citizens figured prominently.

Rabbi Stuart E. Rosenberg, the spiritual head of Beth Tzedec congregation, was signally honored by being invited, together with his charming wife, to be the guests of Her Majesty the Queen, at a private luncheon aboard the Royal yacht Britannia.

Later that evening, Rabbi Rosenberg and the rabbis of several other large Toronto Congregations were guests at a glittering State dinner tendered by the Lieutenant Governor of Ontario.

JACK ORENSTEIN
Executive Director
Beth Tzedec Congregation.

Editor Jewish POST and OPINION We noticed in last week's edition of the National Jewish Post a news item that owing to the fact that there is no chief rabbi in Canada no one was available to represent the Jewish community at a state dinner . . . You will note from the enclosed page from Time Magazine, Canadian edition, July 6, 1959, a picture taken at the state dinner in which Rabbi S. M. Zambrowsky, executive chairman of the Mizrahi Organization of Canada, was seated at the round table with the Queen . . . You can see his Israeli Yamelka. The only others at the table besides Mrs. Zambrowsky, were Senator Fournier, mayor of Montreal, and Donald Gordon, president of the Canadian National Railway. This picture was taken at the ball that followed the state dinner. At the state dinner Rabbi Zambrowsky sat at the head table just a few seats from the Queen.

WOMEN'S VIEWPOINT

Helen Set To Pose Folding Diapers

By HELEN COHEN

I can report from a movie magazine I read while at the doctor's office (with one of the children who had a sore throat) that Elizabeth Taylor told a reporter for the publication that she preferred to keep her private life private, and didn't pose for shots of herself mowing the lawn, cooking, wringing out diapers or washing dishes because she never did these things.

YOU MEAN other movie stars do pose for pictures of themselves occupied with work which they don't actually do?

Incidentally, for the accommodation of anyone wishing to take any such pictures, I'll be happy to pose for those particular homemaking duties any time of the day, though it will be folding not wringing out diapers, what with our drier, and I can usually talk our young men into doing the lawn for the honor and glory of the family.

But washing dishes—now that's another matter. Some day, for the sake of efficiency, I expect to get a dishwasher. Even with the help of the older children and Stella, our greatly esteemed part-time household helper, washing dishes offers steady employment around this domicile, to any one interested, particularly during summer vacation.

FUNNY THING is that I have come to enjoy doing dishes. I've said it more than once—rather do them any day than have to settle an argument between two or more of the children.

And besides there's a solid feeling of security when I'm disturbed or worried about some matter or other to be standing at the sink—this job doesn't take any mental effort in the way of decisions. It just has to be done, and the sooner the better.

Gadabout WITH Gail Gernstein

5436 N. Delaware CLifford 5-9719

I have a sneaking suspicion that the string of parties of two summers ago is trying to revive itself. Friday the 10th found a patio party at Lynn and Don Leonards. The campers from "Wel-Met" (camp in New York) entertained those who showed up at the center on the 11th at 8, with a bonfire. Jerry Steinberger played host to a party at his home on July 11. Caryl Green celebrated her 16th birthday with a luncheon at Lotus Gardens on July 8. (My apologies, Caryl, for getting this in so late.)

Carl Roberts, cousin of Gail and Marilyn Lazar and Sue Steinmetz, from Long Island, N. Y., is visiting Naptown.

Have you noticed the new cars around town? Jeanie Decker and her mom's new Thunderbird?—Bonnie Fisher's new car of her own, a '56 Eldorado Cadillac convertible—the new car I don't have? Did you see the group watching Randy Beck dive at the splash party before the center dance on the 9th?

AROUND THE WORLD—

Travelers galore! Howard Borin left the 9th for California. Elaine Rueben and Judy Senn both spent the weekend of the 11th in Chicago, though they weren't traveling together. Diane Bryan is vacationing in Florida with her parents. Philip Brodey is in Las Vegas. Margey Cohen was visiting in Minneapolis. Marilyn Singer is spending six weeks touring Europe. (lucky girl.) Tom Schloss went off to New Mexico for two weeks to camp. (Correction—the last trip Tom took was to Bermuda and not to Florida.)

MORE-OUT-DOOR FANS:

Among senior campers at Stonycroft camp in Michigan are Cynthia Goldsmith, Susan Stadler, and Judy Goldstein. At Burr Oaks in Wisconsin are Gail Londe and Marcia Schuchman. At Agawah, also in Wisconsin, are Barbara Mann, and Susan Blumenthal.

I've recorded a lot of funny things that have happened to you and your friends these past few weeks, but now I think it's time to let you in on a secret; that writing this column has been more fun and full of surprises than I ever suspected. When I first began, I little dreamed that strangers would call me up at the oddest hours, that I would constantly need to have a pencil handy as people stopped me any place and everywhere and that I would receive several anonymous letters, all for my benefit; to make Gadabout more enjoyable for Naptown. What fun! Thank you!
